DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 5, 6, 10 and 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Simmons, US #5,788,076.

3. Simmons teaches computer readable data code 70' (or 10') affixed to a package of fluid goods (Figure 1). Simmons does not specifically teach what information is included in the code, however, the particular indicia included on a label is considered to be entirely a matter of design choice. It would have been obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art to place whatever indicia necessary on such a data label. Also, where the sole distinction set out in claims over prior art is in printed matter, there being no new feature of physical structure and no new relation of printed matter to physical structure, such claims may not be allowed. Ex parte GWINN, 112 USPQ 439 (BdPatApp&Int 1955).

4. Claims 7, 8, 12 and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Simmons in view of Doyle, UK application #2,240,205.

5. Simmons does not teach a can having paint inside, however, this is old and well known in the art. Doyle teaches a can of paint having labels on the outside thereof. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to apply a computer readable data code label, as in Simmons, to the can of Doyle to provide information thereon.

6. The examiner also takes official notice of paint cans for sale with bar codes affixed to the outside thereof.

Response to Arguments

7. Applicant's arguments filed March 3, 2004 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

8. Applicant states that the claims recite statutory subject matter, and the claims contain functional descriptive material that must be considered and addressed in assessing patentability.

9. The examiner has considered all elements of the claims. The particular information contained in the computer readable code does not present any new and unobvious relationship between the printed matter and the substrate. It is understood that the specific instructions contained in the code are not shown by the prior art, however, as discussed previously, where this is the sole distinction, such claims may not be allowed.
